OVERVIEW & HIGHLIGHTS:

The villages and small towns of Tuscany are divided into three groups: the hinterland of Florence and Lucca, the central area around Siena and Arezzo, and the south. The order of place is roughly north to south with diversions east and west, reflecting the most frequent route taken by visitors to Tuscany. No where in Europe can such small communities as the villages and country towns of Tuscany boast so much architectural treasures. Name a Tuscan village and you often name a Tuscan wine. The wines of this region both red and white are famous around the world, served with equally varied cuisine.
